

Young talent

The future of Hollywood can be found in the hills. The Blue Dandenongs Young Filmmakers Festival showcases the best short films from directors aged under 26. The films will be screened Friday and Saturday night at Cameo Outdoor cinema in Belgrave. Olinda resident Chris Hocking, pictured, submitted Happy Sundaes. The short film is a bitter sweet look at family, belonging and ice-cream. Tecoma resident Miranda Wills' film, 2 Mums and a Dad, was named best documentary at the Sydney Film Festival. She will teach budding directors how to make movies using a mobile phone and how to produce a blockbuster without breaking the budget.
